Cory McIntyre

Cory McIntyre serves as Superintendent of Anoka-Hennepin Schools, one of Minnesota's largest districts, serving approximately 38,000 students across a large suburban and regional area north of the Twin Cities. As chief executive officer, he oversees the district's strategic direction, academic programming, operations, and community partnerships, with responsibility for a large and diverse system of schools, staff, and services. His earlier experience includes service as Superintendent of Osseo Area Schools and prior student services leadership in Anoka-Hennepin, North St. Paul-Maplewood-Oakdale, Hudson, WI, Rochester, and Auburn, WA.

His career reflects executive leadership across districts of varying size and complexity in multiple states. His work has included strategic planning, budget leadership, instructional improvement, and efforts to address persistent achievement gaps while supporting strong outcomes for all learners. He also brings extensive experience building relationships across differing perspectives and helping organizations work toward shared goals.

McIntyre holds a bachelor's degree in psychology and biology from Minnesota State University, Mankato, and both a Master of Science in Education and an Education Specialist degree in school psychology from the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse. He also completed superintendent and principal certification through the University of Minnesota and holds Minnesota credentials as a superintendent, director of special education, K-12 principal, and school psychologist.
