Tim J. Anderson

Tim J. Anderson serves as Executive Director of Academic Services for Prior Lake-Savage Area Schools, a district of approximately 8,900 students across 15 sites. In this cabinet-level role, he supervises building principals, leads the teaching and learning division, and serves as acting superintendent in the superintendent's absence, helping support continuity in district leadership and operations. His earlier experience includes executive leadership in St. Anthony-New Brighton, principalship in Edina, and district-level teaching and learning leadership in Bloomington Public Schools.

His work reflects a combination of instructional leadership, principal supervision, and executive-level operational experience. He has led award-recognized school improvement efforts, supported inclusive practices and student-centered systems, and brought experience spanning teaching and learning, human resources, and operational leadership. His background also includes coaching school leaders and aligning staffing, budgets, and district systems in support of student achievement and organizational effectiveness.

Anderson holds a Doctor of Education in educational leadership from the University of Minnesota, a master's degree in Curriculum and Instruction from the University of Minnesota, and a bachelor's degree in Social Studies secondary education from St. Olaf College. He holds Minnesota licensure as a superintendent, K-12 principal, and secondary social studies teacher.
